

Claim(s)

While the above description contains many specifications, these are not to be construed as limitations on the scope of the invention, but merely as exemplifications of the preferred embodiments thereof. Those skilled in the art will envision many other possible variations within its scope.

I claim:

1. A word game using three 20-sided die (icosahedrons) with all the consonants, one on each side (face), except for Y.
2. A word game using a 6-sided die (cube) with all the vowels, one on each side (face), and including the letter Y.